Early Decision Frequently Asked Questions

1. What is the binding Early Decision Program?

The Early Decision Program at Syracuse College is an expedited process in which the Admissions Committee agrees to review your application earlier in the cycle and provide a decision no later than February 1, 2018. If you are admitted, we require that you commit to enrolling at Syracuse College of Law and that you immediately withdraw all applications at other law schools. Early Decision is only available to applicants applying for the 3-year J.D. program.

2. Is admissions through early decision binding?

Yes. If you are admitted as Early Decision, you must commit to matriculating at Syracuse College of Law and pay the $500 seat deposit by March 1, 2018. Please note that, as an admitted Early Decision candidate, you will likely be asked to confirm your intent to enroll at Syracuse College of Law before you receive your financial aid award.

3. How do I indicate that I want to apply Early Decision?

Early Decision applicants will have a separate application. You will complete the application through LSAC.org. Please be sure to read the Early Decision Guidelines located in the instructions portion of the application.

4. When is the Early Decision Deadline?

The Early Decision application must be completed by January 15, 2018 via LSAC.org. This deadline allows for applicants to take the September or December LSAT exam. Applicants who do not have a complete application by this date may be considered for regular decision.

5. May I change my mind after choosing Early Decision or Regular Decision?

Yes, you can switch from Early Decision to Regular Decision (or from Regular Decision to Early Decision), if you inform us before a decision has been reached. If you have already submitted your Early Decision application and want to be considered as a Regular Applicant you must contact the Admissions Office (admissions@law.syr.edu) and ask us to switch your application. If you are switching from Regular to Early Decision, we will ask you to complete the Early Decision application.

6. When will I receive my decision?

We will send out decisions for Early Decision applicants by February 1st on a rolling basis. Early Decision applicants are either accepted, denied, or waitlisted for further review in the Regular Decision process. If your application is waitlisted and you are offered admission through the Regular Decision process, your offer will no longer be binding. We notify Early Decision applicants of their decisions in the same manner as Regular Decision candidates.

7. Do Early Decision candidates receive an advantage in the admissions process?

By applying Early Decision, an applicant is clearly indicating that Syracuse College of Law is their first choice and the Admissions Committee will note your enthusiasm and desire to attend through the admissions process. In addition, candidates who are admitted through the Early Decision Program will receive a scholarship of at least $10,000, with eligibility of additional scholarship funds. However, applying Early Decision will not overcome any significant weaknesses in an application and Early Decision candidates are evaluated based upon the same criteria as Regular Decision candidates.

8. Do Early Decision candidates receive financial aid?

Applicants admitted through the Binding Early Decision option are eligible for financial aid (both merit- and need-based) just like applicants admitted through the Regular option. Successful applicants admitted through the Early Decision Program will receive a scholarship of at least $10,000, with eligibility of additional scholarship funds.
