Dear Faculty Colleagues.

This week, we entered the second month of our pandemic-inspired remote working model. Thank you for continuing to adapt and adjust every day to meet the demands of our educational mission, and support our students.

As you know, the State of New York has imposed strict limitations on our ability to enter Dineen Hall. But for “essential” personnel, no one is permitted to enter Dineen Hall for any reason, including using our printers.

As essential as our faculty is—and you are—please do not attempt to enter the building or ask any of the very few “essential” staff members to enable entry. Unfortunately, there is no access to our printers and the few staff members in Dineen Hall are not able to print materials for you.

We must now prepare for an exam season without access to College of Law printers and printing services.

Thank you for your patience in these difficult and inconvenient circumstances. Stay well.

Best regards,

Craig
