Cost of Attendance Adjustment Request for Laptop Purchase

Syracuse University College of Law requires all law students to own a laptop computer. You may need to utilize personal financial resources for the purchase of a computer before Orientation if you do not own a laptop computer or if your current laptop computer does not meet the required specifications (see reverse). Early educational loan disbursements are not available for the purchase of your computer before Orientation. All financial aid, including student loans, is disbursed at the beginning of each semester and will not be available to students until 5-10 business days after the first day of class.

The standard cost of attendance for the 2016-2017 academic year does not include the cost of purchasing a new laptop computer. However, personal expenses within the cost of attendance components have proven to vary from student to student and you may not need to borrow additional student loans in excess to cover the purchase of your computer. Students are strongly encouraged to minimize educational loan debt by utilizing personal resources and reducing expenses whenever possible.

The maximum one-time budget adjustment for the computer purchase is $1,700. To request a computer budget adjustment please complete the section below and attach receipts, as proof of purchase, to verify the cost you incurred to purchase a computer.

Laptop Computer Requirement

Syracuse University College of Law (COL) requires students to have a laptop computer and to keep it in good working order. Students often use laptops in the classroom and AirOrangeX, Syracuse University's wireless network, is available throughout the COL. You will use your laptop heavily throughout your law school career. ExamSoft's SofTest software is used in many exams at the COL, and you'll use your laptop for this process also.

While tablet devices running Apple iOS or Google Android are useful for law students, they do not meet the laptop computer requirement.

Computer Skills

Computer skills are essential in the legal profession. At the COL, you will receive training as a first year student in the web-based versions of Westlaw, Lexis, and Bloomberg research tools. You'll also need to be familiar with Microsoft Office, which includes Word, Excel and PowerPoint, as well as internet browsers, and email.

Recommended Laptop Configuration

The Syracuse University Bookstore can provide you with laptop information, including minimum requirements. Any laptop, PC, or Intel-based Mac, purchased within the last two years, will satisfy the COL requirements.

As mentioned above, Microsoft Office is commonly used at the COL, and is available at no cost for all matriculated students.

Supported Platforms

Both PCs and Macs, including the latest operating systems (Windows 10 and El Capitan), are supported at the COL. Windows XP, Mac OS X 6 and below, and Linux platforms are not supported at the COL.

Use of Laptops in the Classrooms

Laptops may be used anywhere in the COL. Electrical outlets for laptops are available in classrooms, study rooms and the law library. You should obtain approval from your professors regarding the use of a laptop during class time.

While we recognize that many students already use one or more commercial email accounts, your University provided email will be our primary means for email communication with you.
