FEDERAL LEGISLATIVE HISTORY

Check the library’s “Location Guide” the Library Online Catalog for the current location of sources mentioned in this pathfinder.

PURPOSE:

This Pathfinder provides guidance on how to research a law’s legislative history. A quick introduction on how a bill becomes a law is given in order to help understand the types of documents generated in the legislative process and where to find them. Then, resources are suggested for finding the various legislative documents.

(See also the Law Library Pathfinder entitled “Federal Statutes”)

I. DEFINITION OF LEGISLATIVE HISTORY

Legislative History is a collection of documents created by the legislative process which, when viewed together, reveal the history and intent of a statute/law. These documents are produced during the course of a bill's path from introduction to deliberation to enactment as a law. Note: The number and type of documents generated varies from statute to statute. For some laws there may be little or no accompanying documents, for others there will be many.

The major documents which comprise a federal legislative history are:

- Bills and their amendments
- Committee reports
- Debates and records of hearings

II. THE LEGISLATIVE PROCESS AND ACCOMPANYING DOCUMENTS

In order to compile a federal legislative history, you must understand the federal legislative process and the kinds of documents generated during each stage of this process.

The following segment briefly reviews the path of a federal bill from introduction to enactment as a law, and describes the various documents which are (or can be) produced during each phase of consideration. Locating these documents is the subject of Part III.
1) The Bill is Introduced

A bill is introduced in one chamber of Congress (House or Senate), then passed, with or without amendments, to the other chamber. Sometimes companion bills are considered simultaneously.

Bills are identified by the chamber (H. for House and S. for Senate) and a number. For example, S.123 is the 123rd bill introduced into the Senate for a given congressional session.

To understand the complete history of a bill:
1. COLLECT ALL AVAILABLE VERSIONS OF THE BILL
2. Track the bill that passed and its companion
3. Track the amendments

2) The Bill is Sent to the Appropriate Committee

Committees give a bill its most intensive consideration. A public hearing takes place if the proposed legislation is significant or controversial. After the hearing, if any, the subcommittee deliberates and reports on the bill, in writing, to the full committee. The full committee votes for the bill or tables it.

3) If the Bill is Reported Favorably, it is Accompanied by a Committee Report or Print

The Committee Report is the most important element of a legislative history. It describes the bill's purpose and impact of the bill on Public Law. A Committee Print expresses the views of one or more members of the committee. It may include material prepared by the committee staff.

4) The Full Chamber Debates the Bill

The usefulness of records and floor debates depends on the seriousness of the discussion.

5) If the Bill is Passed in One Chamber, it is Sent to the Other Chamber

In the other chamber, a similar procedure is followed (i.e., floor debates, committees, etc.).
6) If the Bill Passes the Other Chamber it is Sent Back to the Originating Chamber With or Without Amendments

Conference Committee Reports are generated when members of both chambers meet to discuss discrepancies and make recommendations. Sometimes they convey the committees inability to reach an agreement.

7) The Originating Chamber Votes on the Bill Again

8) When the Bill is Passed, it is Sent Back to the Other Chamber, Which Votes on the Final Version of the Bill

A Bill becomes a Public Law after identical versions have been passed by both the House and Senate and, either (a) the President signs it, or (b) ten days pass without getting the President’s signature.

A Bill may also become Public Law if the President vetoes and his veto is overruled by two-thirds of Congress.

Public Laws (P.L.) are assigned numbers to show which laws Congress enacted during a given session. For example, P.L.89-123 means that this is the 123rd public law enacted by the 89th Congress.

III. LOCATING BILLS

- Commerce Clearing House (CCH) Congressional Index J69.C6 (current congress only)
  - Looseleaf containing current information about the status and course of federal bills.
  - Information provided includes: synopsis of bill; name of sponsor; course of proceedings during consideration; date of passage/when signed by the President; and Public Law number, if passed.

- Calendar Of Business Unclassified Floor 4 Print:
  - Official daily calendar of Congress.
  - Separate editions for House and Senate.
  - Contains bill numbers, synopses of bills, brief legislative histories, and committee information.
IV. SOURCES OF LEGISLATIVE HISTORY

A. Published Compilations

Published legislative histories may be available for significant or controversial legislation. Unfortunately, there is usually a long delay between enactment and publication of a legislative history. Specialized looseleaf services (such as Tax or Bankruptcy) frequently include legislative history materials.

Consult the following to determine if a legislative history has been published or has been compiled:

- Check the Library Online Catalog under the name of the act or by subject
  - Some statutes' legislative histories are published as separate titles.
  - Try a keyword search in the Library Online Catalog using the “legislative history” in quotes:
    - Ex. copyright +“legislative history”

- Sources of Compiled Legislative Histories
  Reference KF 42.2 .J68
  - This is a location guide for published legislative histories.
  - Arranged by Public Law number, it indicates the titles and sources of compiled legislative histories pertaining to that law.
  - It also provides bill numbers and citations to the Statutes at Large.

- Federal Legislative Histories
  Reference KF42.2 .R43
  - This annotated bibliography describes compiled legislative histories of laws from the 37th Congress (1862) to the 101st Congress (1990).
  - It provides the title of the compiled legislative history and SuDoc and/or CIS number where it can be found.

B. The Congressional Information Service (CIS)

CIS is a privately published, comprehensive source for legislative histories of laws passed from 1970 to the present. CIS lists the documents that make up individual legislative histories and provides the full-text of the following documents:

- Records of Hearings
- Committee Reports
- House and Senate Documents
- Miscellaneous special publications

The components of the paper and microfiche CIS system include:

- CIS Index Volumes
  - Main index which includes subjects, names, titles and authors.
  - When you need a legislative history, but don't know the Public Law number:
    1. Look under the general subject in the Index volume
    2. You will be given a Public Law (P.L.) number
    3. With a P.L. number, you can access legislative histories in either the Abstracts Volumes (pre-1984) or the Annual Legislative History Volumes (1984-present)

  - All Public Laws are abstracted with citations to full-text legislative history documents available in the microfiche collection.
  - Locate the Public Law abstract in the “Legislative History” section of the appropriate Abstracts volume. Abstracts of legislative histories are arranged by P.L. number.
  - There is no general subject index in the Abstracts volume; you must refer to the Index volumes for that year.

- Annual Legislative History Volumes (used for legislation enacted on or after 1984)
All Public Laws are outlined with citations to full-text legislative history documents available in the microfiche collection.

Arranged by P.L. number for each year.

Includes a subject index.

- CIS Microfiche Collection
  - The full-text of congressional documents cited in the Legislative History and Abstracts volumes are available in microfiche.
  - Documents are arranged by year and CIS document number (same as the Abstract numbers for individual documents). The collection is divided into Senate/House/Joint publications.

C. Compiling Your Own Legislative History: An Introduction

If a law does not have a previously compiled legislative history, nor is it located in CIS (pre 1970), then a legislative history must be compiled from scratch. The following procedure should be used when compiling a statute’s legislative history:

1. Read the text of the code section in the USCA/USCS

2. Consult the United States Code Congressional and Administrative News  Floor 4
   The United States Code Congressional and Administrative News (USCCAN) collects public laws and legislative histories by Congressional session.

   Both sections are organized chronologically, and each annual set has its own subject index and popular name table.

   The Legislation History section provides the text of important committee reports and an outline of other elements in the legislative history.
Each multi-volume edition covers a particular session of Congress and also includes Executive Orders and Presidential Proclamations.

Note: USCCAN materials are arranged by Public Law number (i.e., laws are compiled in chronological order). If you don't know the Public Law number, use the general subject index or the popular name table in the last volume.

V. OTHER SOURCES FOR LEGISLATIVE INFORMATION

- Congressional Record
  - The Congressional Record contains verbatim transcripts for floor debates and proceedings, transcripts, including remarks by members of Congress, votes, proposed amendments, and sometimes, the texts of bills.
  - The Congressional Record Index contains the General Index, History of Bills and Resolutions, and status and course of bills, names of committees, indication of debates and citations to the Record published semi-monthly.

- Authorized Westlaw and Lexis users please see Reference Librarian or online vendor student reps for database identifier information.

- United States Government Documents
Government Documents are issued Superintendent of Documents (SuDoc) Numbers, which serve the same purpose as call numbers.

For example, if you were doing a Library Online Catalog search for Immigration law, any document with the author listed as “United States” is a Government publication.

Use the SuDoc number (i.e. Y 4.H 81/3:N 21) to locate the document in the collection.

Bird Library also has paper indices for locating Government Publications.

Government Publications are typically difficult to search on Library Online Catalog, therefore, try the Government Publications Index on InfoTrac CD-ROM Database.
